Music Meets Enterprise

Eight Kaipara College students have taken up the EMC Challenge. EMC? Enterprising Music Competition! The challenge involves creating a product, marketing it and selling it.

The students have decided to produce a CD of original music written, played and recorded by Kaipara students.

On Wednesday seven of us attended a workshop to learn some of skills needed to create and market our product successfully. It's early days for the team but we are well on our way and have our sights set high!

Want to be in a better environment at school? If this is you, then the Kaipara F.I.T.E organisation is your divine calling. Kaipara F.I.T.E or Footprints in the Earth, is a mixture of passionate students from all year groups attempting to make a change towards sustainability in our school. With the dominant goals of continuing and improving the recycling system at Kaipara and eliminating the rubbish problem, the Kaipara F.I.T.E organisation has a challenging year ahead! "It's a job that's never started that takes the longest to finish." said J.R.R Tolkien. For the Kaipara F.I.T.E organisation, it is time to start making a change!

World Vision Global Leadership Convention

Madeline Shelling, Jasmine Sawyers-Mullen, James Cox, Shaquille Wasasala and Kothar Esau represented Kaipara at a World Vision Convention that collected two hundred students from secondary schools around Auckland to focus attention on the global food situation.

The aim was to inspire and motivate participation in the up-coming 40 Hour Famine. There were some top presentations about the global food situation that focussed the students' attention on the factors that affect food availability and prices. However the most eye opening session was the game that involved students re-creating the World. Of course, they were determined to make a perfect planet but once it became clear that points were on offer for succeeding, it quickly became competitive. And with the competition came the dodgy decisions that teams used to give themselves an edge. Very soon, to their disappointment, they had re-created many features of the real world. But they have returned to school motivated to run a successful 40 Hour Famine at the College.
